Vol. XXXIV No. 1

Loyola College — Baltimore 10, Maryland

September 23, 1960

Rector's Message

Men of Loyola:

It is my pleasure as President of your College to greet the returning upperclassmen and to welcome our freshmen.

Perhaps my words of welcome have already been said, for, as I noted in my remarks at the close of the Academic Convocation on Friday, September 16, 1960, it was my privilege to celebrate the Mass of the Holy Spirit when I placed before God the common needs, goals and hopes of the College.

It was also my wish, as expressed to you, that you would grow "in wisdom and age and grace before God and man." If you grow in virtue and knowledge during the coming academic year, you will enjoy the satisfaction of those who complete their mission and will truly represent Loyola College to the world.

Sincerely yours in Christ

President, Loyola College

Msgr. Tracy Ellis Honored At Fall Convocation

Msgr. Ellis

Mr. O'Brien Leaves

We of the Greyhound would like to extend our sincere thanks to Mr. Jon J. O'Brien, S.J., now at Woodstock, for his faithful and consistent aid as our moderator in our first year as a weekly publication, and look forward to success under the leadership of Fr. Lawler.

We regret the loss of Mr. Jungers, S.J. who has gone to Woodstock, and Fr. Conlin, S.J. who is studying at St. Louis University.

The Rt. Rev. Msgr. John Tracy Ellis, professor of Church history at the Catholic University of America, received an honorary degree of Doctor of Letters at the Fall Honors Convocation on September 16.

Speaking on the necessity of diligence in studies, Monsignor Ellis pointed out that ". . . it has taken the suggestion of national disaster to awaken the teachers and students to the importance of Academic Life."

Hard Work

Monsignor Ellis posed the question, "What is it that enables some secular colleges to attain such high nation-wide academic positions?", and answered that a prime factor would be the emphasis on hard work by the student body.

At the annual Mass of the Holy Ghost, Fr. Davish delivered the sermon and called for divine assistance so that the entire student body might advance in wisdom, maturity and grace.

Stressing the difference between wisdom and knowledge, Fr. Davish defined wisdom as "the higher gift of the spirit which enables one to put his knowledge to good use."

Enrollment Jumps As 264 Freshmen Enter

It seems that Loyola College enrollment has been increasing by leaps and bounds over the past few years. This year, a class of 264 freshmen is enrolled as opposed to only 247 last year.

The 264 frosh enrolled are products of some 28 secondary schools throughout the country. Of these 28 schools, 14 are in the Baltimore Metropolitan area, 7 from the outlying districts, and 7 from various schools around the country.

Great Expectations

Among the new frosh are many fine athletes as well as an array of top-notch scholars. Faculty members are very high on the new arrivals and expect a banner year from the freshman class.

"I'm quite sure that over 70% of the freshmen are students from the top two-fifths of their respective graduating classes, and I firmly believe that we have good reason to expect a very high level of performance from them," said Fr. Smardon, Director of Admissions.

Welcome Frosh

The freshmen welcome, which was begun by the A.S.O. is now starting to go into full swing. Starting two weeks ago, the 264 were shown the merits of joining a club at the "Join-a-Club Fair" on the school grounds.

Today, the frosh are slated to have a go at the annual "Freshman-Sophomore Rugby game" on the athletic field. On October 8, they will be officially welcomed into the fold at the gala "Freshmen Welcome Dance."

No, it's not an exodus from a monastery; just beannie-clad frosh heading for the activity displays during Orientation.

Editorials

Student Regulations

When we returned to the Evergreen Campus after our three month holiday, we were issued the Loyola College student handbook for the year 1960-61. This booklet contains every bit of information that the student would want to know about Loyola College life.

We would like to call your attention to the section which begins on page thirteen entitled "Student Regulations". This section will bring about complaints from some students. It should not. Every Loyola student should remember that the rules and regulations of the college are adopted by the administration because it is felt that if these are kept, the student will become a more responsible man.

We ask you to read the regulations carefully and to follow them at all times. They WILL benefit the student.

Jesuit Tribute

Mr. Nathan Garrett, one of Loyola's oldest and most dependable employees died on September 7. Mr. Garrett will be much missed by the Jesuit faculty for he served table in the residence for nineteen years. Even in the worst of winter weather he was always on time.

Before coming to Loyola he served as waiter on the Capitol Limited and at one time was employed in the same capacity at the famous Rennert Hotel which was once a Baltimore landmark at Saratoga and Cathedral Streets.

Rev. Vincent F. Beatty, S. J. offered the requiem Mass at St. Pius X Church on September 12 with many of the Jesuit faculty attending.

The death of Mr. Nathan brings to an end his great efficiency and his loss will be felt by all Jesuits who have ever been stationed at Loyola.

A Call To Action

By Ken Gray, Council President

To the Men of Loyola:

I hope that this first week of school has marked the beginnings of the "hard work" to which Msgr. John Tracy Ellis exhorted us last Friday. His excellent scholarship and dedication to the academic life in Catholic colleges should not go unheeded at Loyola.

A Problem

It would be neglecting my duties as President of the Student Council if I did not mention at this time a problem which concerns the students and their representative board, the Student Council.

Each class and its component sections has or will have (as in the case of the Freshmen) representatives on the Council. These men are elected by you to represent your grievances and feelings as best they can. Naturally this is impossible if they do not know what your sentiments and ideas are.

Information, Please

In order for the Student Council to be an effective organ of the Student Community, the students should inform the members of important college problems.

Granted that the Council has an obligation of keeping itself aware of student thought, there are, however, instances where opportunities for improvement are missed because those who are in a position to help do not realize their position.

The problem, then, is one of communication. Yet each of us can effect a solution. Learn who your representative is and periodically check to see if he is fulfilling his obligation.

Above all, talk to him about your problems, suggestions and ideas. In this way the Student Council will be able to represent the students fully and in a manner exemplary of the democratic processes.

In conclusion, I wish to thank the Greyhound for giving me the opportunity to speak to you.

Ken Gray

the Watchdog

It's obvious that the error contained in the posters advertising the Evergreen Players new play was intended. Anyone can see that it is merely a publicity gag. Being too intelligent to fall for such gimmicks, this column will not mention it.

One of the guards at last week's convocation ceremony was so overcome with emotion that he fainted and slid silently beneath the stands. Another guard, Tom Kneaval, refused to quit his post to help his fallen comrade. Such conduct is in keeping with the time-honored traditions of Her Majesty's Troops. Unfortunately, Her Majesty was not present but neither was her Palace Guard.

Roger Price has a new novel on the market entitled, "J. G., The Upright Ape." Those who are dedicated to Higher Education will be edified by this excerpt from the book:

"Professor Quimble lived in a clearing in the Jungle called the Campus. The Jungle Creatures sent their Young to the Campus to be taught How to Get Along in the World. The ones who were not able to learn How to Get Along in the World remained on at the Campus, became Professors and taught other younger creatures How to Get Along in the World. It was a remarkable system and very effective, in that it invariably produced a surplus of Professors."

After visiting our office, some of the freshmen wanted to know if Woodstock typewriters were made by the Jesuits. At first we thought such questions were merely intended for humor. But then we discovered the most important and most frequently stressed item on the A.S.O. tour last week — the location of the restrooms.

We eagerly await the publication of Charlie Holewinski's new article written about the Manresa Retreat. It's called, "Working on the Railroad."

Who is the fellow in the old army uniform who has been seen lately pushing a Wheelbarrow around the student union basement? The wheelbarrow seems to be filled with sand.

As is customary, many of the freshmen drive new cars. One that we've noticed is a flashy looking Hupmobile (a what?). Barring difficulties with the insurance companies, it might be around all year.

While we're on the subject of cars, Rol Sturm suggests that the person or persons who stole his car seek psychiatric treatment.

Campus Question

Question:

We asked the Freshmen . . .
What was your impression of Orientation Week?

Philip E. Pierpont Chemistry

My first impression of Loyola was one of orderliness and friendly co-operation. The confusion and frantic last minute rushing which so often marked our high school projects seems, fortunately to have disappeared. Thanks to the effort of those who planned the events, the welcome afforded us during the freshmen orientation was both pleasant and rewarding.

John Heise Science

Interesting and inspirational would be the words I would use in describing orientation week. Each talk seemed to make us more and more impatient to start the new year. From the welcoming address to the president's reception, the events flowed smoothly and reflected the fine job done by the orientation committee.

Frank Walsh English

It was surprising to experience the warm welcome we received during orientation week. Equally surprising was the thoroughness and completeness of the program. I was particularly impressed by the personal greeting extended by Fr. Beatty, Fr. Galvin and other members of the faculty. Their kind concern did much to make us feel at home.

William A. Gardiner English

Orientation week cleared up any doubts we had concerning the serious transition from high school to college. We learned of the high standards expected of college gentlemen and we met some of the men who would guide us in the next four years. The displays were loud, colorful and effective. The guides were helpful, and all in all it was very impressive.

Dramatics Society Presents Ernest; Next Weekend

The Mask and Rapier Dramatic Society of Loyola College announces that its first presentation of the season is Oscar Wilde's delightful satire, "The Importance of Being Ernest." It will be presented on Friday, September 30, and Saturday, October 1. The curtain will rise at 8:30.

The situation revolves about Algernon Moncrieff, who has social background, when he falls in love with the wealthy, but socially impoverished, Jack Worthing's ward, Cecily Cardew. Jack, in turn, becomes infatuated with Algernon's cousin, Gwendoline Fairfax.

The girls are captivated by the name of Jack's fictitious brother, Ernest. Lady Bracknell, Algernon's class conscious old aunt, finally solves the dilemma created when the young ladies discover that there is no brother Ernest. The play derives its entertainment value from Wilde's rapier wit and brutal perceptiveness.

Lady Bracknell, the female lead, is played by Martha Monius, a freshman at Mt. St. Agnes, and Ron Yakaitis, a Loyola Sophomore, who makes his debut on the Loyola stage as Jack Worthing. The supporting cast consists of Catherine Monius and Mary McGeehan, Students at Mt. St. Agnes, and Carol Seaholm of Maryland Institute. Ed Conery, Dick Benjes, and John Baynes fill out Loyola's contribution.

This is the first production staged by the society's new director, John Synodinos, a Loyola grad.

City Life

The movie "Portrait In Black" is one of the finest examples to come out of Hollywood in a few years of a B movie with an A cast and an A budget.

Taking such stars as Lana Turner and Anthony Quinn, plus Sandra Dee, the producer tried to give class to a second rate script which just didn't have it.

It is reasonable to assume that the murder would not have been solved if the policemen who saw the culprits drive away from the crossing had suddenly died or contracted amnesia; it is hard to believe, however, that John Saxon, Sandra's lover, would have happened to be driving near the house just as she was being chased by one of the murderers; In short: Good show-no script.

how'd you catch on so quick? Catch on to the fact that Coca-Cola is the hep drink on campus, I mean. Always drink it, you say? Well—how about dropping over to the dorm and downing a sparkling Coke or two with the boys. The man who's for Coke is the man for us.

Rol Sturm VIEWS Sports

Today at 10 a.m. a ballgame will be played at Evergreen that is only surpassed by a World Series game. Two of the finest teams in this area will clash when the Loyola Faculty Profs take on the Intramural All Stars in a small diamond encounter. The speedy baserunning and the flawless fielding of the Faculty should highlight the game.

Mickey McElroy will be patrolling centerfield and setting the pace on the base paths for the Faculty. The Faculty's infield is built around an infamous double play combination of Clark Kent Lind at short, Nap Doherty, at second, and Moose Reitz at first. Vince Colimore will be holding down the hot corner for the Profs while Ted Kammel in left field and Gene Weigman in right field will be counted on heavily for their slugging.

This Faculty team in addition to its fine fielding and hitting also has a battery that has sanctified the students before. Yogi Lawler will be behind the plate hanging on to the offerings of Milt Galvin.

Opposing this fine Faculty team will be a conglomeration of has-beens from last year's Intramural League. Inebriates like Tom Schultz and Lou Lomp can be counted on to throw their usual wild game.

With two such erratic pitchers the All Stars had trouble finding a catcher. Finally after a great deal of effort they obtained Joe Curran, a refugee from Israel, who combines a lack of sense with a lack of feeling to make the ideal battery mate for these two hurlers.

The rest of the team are illiterates who could not read their names even if we printed them.

Don't miss the game it should be interesting.

That famous double play combination of Clark Kent Lind and Nellie Doherty.

Seniors Tom Schultz and Wade Bowman vie for loose ball in early scrimmage.

Newcomers And Veterans Give Booters Hope

With a predominantly veteran team returning this year, coach Tommy Lind hopes for a successful season with the 1960 soccer team. The team has lost only three players from the starting unit through graduation. Forward Jerry Beck, halfback Ed Zepp, and fullback Tom Jones have departed. The Hounds suffered a great loss when Dennis Ray entered the Naval Academy. Denny was a starter last year as a freshman and was counted on greatly this year.

Bowman Sparks Defense

Bearing much of the defensive burden for Loyola this year will be Wade Bowman, who will also captain the team.

Another cause for hope is the return of Jim Kennedy, last year's leading scorer at center forward. Bucky Effinger is another returning veteran who is counted on greatly in the forward line. Also returning are halfback Tom Schultz and goalie Don Wallenhorst, who is in his second year of varsity play as a sophomore.

Freshman To Start

Coach Lind is also pleased with the largest turnout of freshmen in recent years. The most outstanding of these is Dennis Grabowski who has clinched a starting berth in the forward line. Grabowski should team with Effinger and Kennedy to form a potent scoring trio.

The Greyhounds open their season at home on Saturday, October 1, against the University of Maryland.

Play this year on the squad should be just as interesting as the colorful outfit of last year. They were a hustling bunch of players who fought and scrapped for everything they did. They were never really overwhelmed in any of their games and always gave it the good battle right down to the wire.

Intramural Items

By MATT SCHWIENTECK

Intramural Director Nap Doherty has announced the deadline for entries in the Touch Football League will be Wednesday, September 28.

All freshmen with a highly competitive spirit are urged, if not begged, to enter teams into this amiable, funloving league. Who, you may ask, would ask the freshmen for anything? Why none other than the gentle upperclassmen, who take pride in their reputation for being kind to the "beanie clad clan" — especially in sports where physical contact is necessary.

No freshmen, as yet, have taken up this challenge from the cream of society. It will be a sorry day in Houndville if none of the young ones enter into the spirit of the college and attempt to smash this brazen, cockiness of the upperclassmen. Have no fear, members of the clan, it has been done before!

To relieve your tormented minds, as to whether you will or will not enter a team, Senior Mole Vitrano, the Uncrowned KING of Intramurals, was overheard dedicating his retreat at Manressa to the success of his world famous intramural teams. Incidentally, the Moleskins have been seeded number one by Nap Doherty.

Runnersup

If doubt has arisen in Moles mind after this number one billing, then it is plausible that the crown may be garnered by some team other than the Skins.

The Junior Dukes have been voted the team most second likely to succeed. The Hounddogs are also ready, willing and able to bounce the Skins from the top spot.

Entries for intramural tennis must be submitted on September 27.

Harriers Strive For Their Third Unbeaten Season

by Sam Levin

Loyola's Cross-Country team is about to embark on a new year with hopes of making it three in a row. The team has had two consecutive undefeated seasons and will be going all out in an effort to keep this victory string alive.

Last year's team, as well as winning all seven of its dual meets, also was victorious in the second annual Loyola Invitational Meet, triumphing over Mt. St. Mary's 37-43.

Third in M-D

In the Mason-Dixon finals, the team finished third in team score with two of its members, Paul Sherman and Lew Smith, receiving medals for their fine performances.

Last year's team also ran off the first perfect score in team history when they victimized Galaudet by a score of 15-40 as the team ran its opening meet.

This Year

This is, however, a new year and there will be some old as well as new faces as the "Hounds" of Bill McElroy try to add to their consecutive victory string of fourteen. Paul Sherman, the team's captain and top runner, as well as a Mason-Dixon medal winner will be lost through graduation. Another one of the team's good runners, John Burton, is also lost due to graduation.

Soph. Prospects

Although the harriers will have lost two good men, the team should still be a good one and all signs are pointing to a third successful year. Last year one freshman, Hank McGraw, was able to not only make the team, but to also help it along quite a bit.

With the experience that he obtained during his first year, he should now be better able to help give the "Hounds" a lift and take up some of the slack left by Sherman's leaving.

Three other returning lettermen who will help out will be Juniors Wayne Leidner, Lew Smith, and Mike Abromaitis. With a few other returnees from last year and some good freshmen to work with, it may be possible to go after and get that third undefeated year.

Opening Meets

The "Hounds" will open their season on October 8th at Catholic University at 2:30. Their first home meet will be with American University on October 11th at 3. Coach McElroy is still interested in anyone who has the desire to run.
